

No Trace of Bandit Murderer Found

Bandits Who Held Up And Fatally Shot Oil Station Operator, Escape

William Schmook, 56 years old who has been in charge of the McMullen oil station on the Lincoln highway at the four corners north of Frankfort, was fatally shot when he grappled with one of a bandit crew that attempted to rob the station last Sunday night.

Schmook, who lived at the station and Elizabeth McMullen, daughter of Robert McMullen, owner of the station who lives at 7728 North Marshfield avenue, Chicago, were on duty at 10 o'clock Sunday night, when a black sedan, carrying four men, drew up at one of the gasoline pumps. Two of the men alighted and entered the station which also contains a lunch room. They ordered coffee and after drinking it, each man drew a revolver and demanded money.

One of the bandits forced Miss McMullen toward a rear room. The other robber gave his attention to Schmook. The attendant, instead of raising his hands, snatched for the bandit's gun. Missing, he leaped for the door, the bandit in pursuit. Outside the station Schmook again turned on the bandit and seized him by the arms. The bandit shot and Schmook fell with a bullet in his abdomen.

In the meantime Miss McMullen escaped thru a door and ran across the highway to the Larson garage to get help. She saw Schmook fall, and then heard the whine of bullets as the second bandit opened fire on her. The bullets went wild however, and the two gunmen jumped in their car and were driven away.

It is thought the bandits headed out of Frankfort on Route 51 and picked up a gravel road in the McDonald subdivision. The night operator at the J depot south of Frankfort heard a car roaring down the gravel road shortly after ten o'clock Sunday night and it is presumed the bandits took this road to avoid the traffic on the paved highways and made an easy escape. No clue of any kind has been found leading to the bandits or their car.

Miss McMullen called the sheriff's office at Joliet and deputies and Sergeant James O'Neil of the state highway police responded. Sergeant O'Neil flashed a warning to all the state highway patrolmen in the district to watch for the car in which the killers escaped, but apparently it had too much of a start.

The deputies took Schmook to the Silver Cross hospital at Joliet, where he was attended by Dr. John D. Krohn. The man was mortally wounded and died within an hour after the shooting.

Before he died Schmook gave authorities a good description of his assailant and investigators were hopeful of his capture, but up to the time of going to press no trace had been found of him.

Schmook had been employed by McMullen since last summer and lived in a room in the rear of the station, for the past year. He had three sons and a daughter living in Rockford, two sons in Madison, Wis., and one son in Rock Island.

The bandit who fired at Miss McMullen was described as being more than six feet in height, weighed about 180 pounds, and wore a brown overcoat and light colored hat. His clothing appeared to be of good quality. The man who killed Schmook was almost six feet tall, weighed about 150 pounds, was of light complexion and wore a light overcoat and light colored hat. He appeared to be quite young according to Miss McMullen and Schmook. No description was obtained of the two men who remained in the car.

Miss McMullen had a large calibre revolver concealed under the counter for just such an emergency as that of Sunday night and has been practicing shooting several times a week but she had no chance to reach her gun.

Miss McMullen stated that if she could have got hold of her gun she would have shot it out with the bandits.

Mokena P. O. Opens Hour Later

Beginning with Thursday morning the Mokena postoffice opens at 7:45 a. m., instead of 7 a. m., as formerly. The reason for changing the opening hour is that the morning mail now comes in at 8:14 a. m., and consists chiefly of parcel post. The second mail comes in at 8:47 and consists of first class mail and newspapers. As there was no mail service at the 7 o'clock opening of the office and an hour of idle time it was considered best to save on fuel and light by opening the post office 45 minutes later.

Prosperity Corner Zig - Zag Says Orland Park Man

Commenting on the present depression, John Lindgren of Orland Park says that 18 months ago he heard that "prosperity was around the corner" but he believes that corner is not round but rather zig-zag.

Last 4th of July he was in Muskegon, Michigan and there was then already a bread line. There was no building work going on.

Mr. Lindgren further relates that he visited with a farmer there. The farmer was working 16 hours a day but had nothing to buy anything with at the store. A cow died. He took the hide to a town 16 miles away and received 57 cents for the hide.

For awhile oil wells had been affording work in that section, but now they are closed down. The office has a for rent sign in it now. He further shows the bad conditions by citing a case where a laborer was given 50 bushels of brown beans in payment for his labor, but there was no market for the beans.

Last August he was in Rockford and he heard of a contractor taking a $3,000 job in good times, for $600 now in order to keep out of bread line. Mr. Lindgren asks the question "Where can we find a remedy? Who is going to be the modern Moses? He refers to the Bible Eccl. 2:11.

Outstanding Editorial Written By Orland Park School Student

The following editorial written by Marion Wheeler, a student in the Orland Park high school appeared in the January issue of THE NOOHS the Orland High School paper and we considered it so good that we reprint it herewith:

Everyone should have a purpose in life. We should not merely drift along day after day, taking what comes to us and giving little, willing to sit back and look upon the world activities, taking no part in them themselves. For the sooner we realize our place in this world the better, for if we do not know our place we will be as one stranded upon the shores of a desert island, drifting along, not knowing where to go and what to do. We must be up and doing and find our place in this world. To those of you who are dreamers you should try to be a little more practical, and dreams are fine things, but must be backed up by something more substantial. We must make dreams come true. To those of you who play constantly, goes the old saying, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." When we play we should play and when we work we should work. And to those people who drift along you will realize your mistake too late and then it will be too late to find your way back. You will be one who has accomplished nothing. Remember, never put over until tomorrow what you can do today. Also, remember, tomorrow may never come. Today is the day of achievement. We get out of our lives exactly what we put into it. If we put much into it, it will return us many fold. If we put nothing into it, our harvests will be barren. "He that soweth, will also reap." Life is a game, so let us play the game, so in the end we will be winners instead of losers.

ORLAND FIRE DEPT. FIGURES IN COSTLY FIRE

As the result of a peculiar mishap, the Orland Park Fire Department lost 800 feet of hose at a critical time at a fire Sunday night in the Rainy subdivision when the bungalow of A. J. Tolle, occupied by Barney Homerding, burned to the ground.

The fire was discovered about six o'clock Sunday evening. The fire siren blew and the fire department was right on the job. All went well until the fire hose was hooked up. Soon as the water pressure was turned on 800 feet of the hose blew up.

The Worth and Lemont fire departments were summoned and responded promptly, but the fire was beyond control and nothing was saved. The bungalow was of stucco finish and the inside of the walls was gutted, the only room remaining intact was the pantry.

The Homerding family was not at home, having gone to Joliet to attend a show and what their feelings were when they returned and found their home in ruins, cannot be imagined. Nothing of the household goods was saved.

The loss on the building is estimated at about $6,000 covered by insurance.

The cause of the hose bursting is said to have been due to a glass bottle containing acid for the chemical breaking and allowing the acid to spill on a roll of hose. Wherever the acid hit, it burned thru the hose with the result that 800 feet of it was rendered useless.

The village purchased 1,000 feet of new hose Monday morning at a cost of $850.00.

Orland Bank Re-elects Officers

A large Pierce-Arrow automobile was burned mysteriously along side of the pavement on 159th street and 82nd avenue last Thursday night. The car was burned to the ground. Prohibition Scored In Wet Political Rally Held At Mokena

The first political meeting of the 1932 campaign in Mokena was held at the Mokena School Auditorium, Thursday night.

The principle speakers were Mrs. Wm. A. Sauer, Miss Mary Platt and Col. Ira L. Reeves, all of Chicago and Homer B. Grommon, Chairman of the Will County Taxpayers League.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. Don C. Hall of Mokena. Mr. Hall presided as chairman of the evening. The attendance was small due to the rainy night.

Music was furnished by the Misses Wanda and Alva Hall and Carlos Hall, all of Mokena.

The meeting was purely against the present form of prohibition and some of the high spots in the address given by Mrs. Sauer are as follows:

"Almost twelve years ago, the 18th amendment known as the Prohibition amendment, became a law and almost immediately thereafter, the people of this country began to realize that a law had been passed which was fundamentally wrong.

1—Because it conflicts with the basic American principle of state rights.

2—Because its attempt to force total abstinence on the people ignores the fact that no law will be respected or can be enforced that is not supported by the moral sense and common conscience of those affected by it.

3—This law ignores the fact that a nation educated in the cause of temperance will do more to destroy the evils of intoxicating liquors, than a fanatical law which has helped to destroy respect for all law.

The World War came, and greater demands were made upon our nation. Did we falter? The dead of the Marne, of Chateau Thierry, of Argonne, answer, and from across the sea to our unknown soldier in Arlington, the wind brings the message, "We all died that Freedom might live."

"We cannot say that Freedom lives. We have not been faithful to the cause for which these countless men have died. We have allowed our country to be ruled by hypocrites, gangsters, corrupt politicians. We stand discredited before the world, because we fail to remedy an evil that is eating out the very life of the nation, because a graft ridden machine, steered by the Anti-Saloon League, and oiled by racketeers and gangsters dominates our government.

"We hear of young girls having B. Y. O. L. parties, meaning "Bring Your Own Liquor." We hear of girls of fifteen and sixteen years of age being committed as habitual drunkards. We hear of more women arrested for intoxication than ever before."

World's Jewish Population

FAUST

IT WAS no grisly bargain with the devil that made Faust the central figure in a famous legend, the theme of at least two plays and three operas. In Main, Germany, in the Fourteenth century, people won a reputation for undue intimacies with the devil very easily; and Faust won his overnight, almost, with a printing press!

Johann Gutenberg had just invented the process of printing with movable type. To commercialize his invention he formed the first printing company, Gutenberg, Faust and Shoeffler, to which he contributed the idea, and Faust the capital and a fare for sales promotion. Shoeffler was Faust's son-in-law. Since there were no patent laws at the time, the printing had to be done behind closed doors, often at night, to prevent the idea being stolen. The public, accustomed to slowly and laboriously hand-printed letters, gazed in awe at the freshly printed pages turned out so rapidly in that mysterious shop, and hinted magic. Faust perceived the sales value of that word, encouraged its use and became popularly known, not as a printer, but a man with some strange allegiance with the devil!

Old records show that Faust later won a law suit against Gutenberg for funds invested and lost in the printing of the famous Gutenberg Bible, a single copy of which, perhaps proving the theory of magic, sold in 1926 for $305,000.

SKIPPER IRESON

WHEN John Greenleaf Whittier used popular tales circulating about the fishing village of Marblehead in his poem "Skipper Ireson's Ride," he unwittingly served to perpetuate a great injustice.

"Floyd Ireson, for his hard heart," wrote Whittier, "was tarred and feathered and carried in a cart, by the women of Marblehead."

On the night of October 28, 1808, the fishing schooner Betty, Skipper Ireson in command, passed almost within hailing distance of the Active, about to sink in the heavy sea. Skipper Ireson would have stopped to give aid; his crew, fearful for their own lives, disobeyed his orders to stand by to succor the Active and set sail for home while he was taking a bit of a nap below. Once safe home they accused the skipper of refusing aid, and their story was affirmed later when four survivors of the ill-fated Active reached port. The angry populace of Marblehead seized Skipper Ireson, stripped and bound him, tarred him and covered him with feathers and dragged him through the streets in an old dory. When its bottom fell out they put their victim in a cart and proceeded, howling on their way.

Not till many years later, when Skipper Ireson was old, blind, and destitute, and it was too late to make amends, was the true story told, by the Betty's cabin boy, now grown to manhood and a new sense of honor.

CASABIANCA

TWO generations of school boys have declaimed and parodied Mrs. Heman's poem commencing "The boy stood on the burning deck," few of them perhaps realizing that the small hero therein described really lived, and died as the poem tells.

During Napoleon's expedition into Egypt, England sent her famous admiral, Lord Nelson, against the French fleet, and all but four of the French vessels were sunk or captured. The French admiral had fallen, and the flagship, wrapped in flames and sinking, was deserted by all of her crew who could squeeze into the lifeboats or swim. Only the captain, Louis Casabianca, already badly wounded but following the time-honored tradition of sea captains, refused to leave his post, determined to go down with his ship. Suddenly those on the attacking British vessels saw that the gallant captain was not alone. His ten-year-old son, who had hidden in a coil of ropes until the decks were cleared, now rushed up to his father, threw a supporting arm about him and stood ready to share his fate. Commands and entreaties failed to move the boy. And fighting was suspended and the British cheered and wept as the flaming ship bearing the two heroes sank into the water.

From the Greek

The word "attic" is geographical. The architects of Attica, of which Athens was the ancient capital, planned such a story, rising above an architrave or cornice, because it was especially suited to their type of building. In modern times such an Attic or Attic story has been called an attic.

Evening Not Wholly Lost

A young man out our way called at a home where he was not wanted the other evening. Soon afterward he issued from the door, with the father not far behind; and in summing up the experience he said it was unusual, but he certainly got a great kick out of it.—Detroit News.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Lesson for January 17

JESUS AND NICODEMUS

LESSON TEXT—John 3:1-21. GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Tells How Much God Loves Us.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Answer to a Ruler's Question.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Beginnings of the Christian Life.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The New Birth.

I. The History of Nicodemus (vv. 1, 2, cf. 7:45-52; 19:38-42).

The lesson today has its peculiar significance in the light of Nicodemus' station in life. He was a learned rabbi, a doctor of the law, and presumably a man of good character. His coming by night indicates his timidity. Like Joseph of Arimathea, he was afraid to espouse openly the cause of the new teacher of Galilee. Though timid, as an honest man, he investigated and obtained first-hand information. Because of this information, he uttered the brave words in the Sanhedrin against judging a man before hearing him (John, 7:45-52); and rendered loving service at the Lord's tomb (John 19:38-42).

II. Jesus' Discourse to Nicodemus on the New Birth (vv. 3-17).

1. The necessity of the new birth (vv. 3-7). If one is ever to see or enter the kingdom of God, he must be born again. There can be no personal choice in the matter. Regeneration is the first demand the gospel of Christ makes upon man. The reasons for this are:

a. The Kingdom of God is a spiritual kingdom, therefore there must be a spiritual birth in order to enter it (v. 3). As we enter the physical kingdom by a natural birth, so we enter the kingdom of God by a supernatural birth.

b. The nature which is ours through the natural birth is radically and essentially bad (v. 6, cf. Gal. 5:19-21). That which is born of the flesh is flesh. In the Galatian text Paul gives a catalogue of the works of the flesh. The flesh cannot be improved (Jer. 13:23). In order to enter into the kingdom of heaven there must be a nature fitted for heaven. There is nothing that can be substituted for the new birth. Men today are trying to substitute morality and education for the new birth. Nicodemus possessed these, yet Christ declared that he needed more.

2. The mystery of the new birth (vv. 8-13). Though the new birth is mysterious, its results are definite. This mystery is illustrated by the wind. We cannot discern from whence it cometh or whither it goeth, but we know by its effects that it blows. The fruit of the life demonstrates its nature, whether it is heavenly or carnal. We need not to be told that we have had a physical birth for our bodies with their various faculties in exercise prove it. Even so, the presence within us of a nature which has no affinity for the things of the world, a strong affection for God and a disposition to yield prompt obedience to his commands proves our birth from above. Just as the tree is known by its fruit, so tastes, desires, and ambitions prove the quality of our nature.

3. The ground upon which the new birth rests (vv. 14, 15). Christ's atoning death on the cross makes regeneration possible. He took the place of sinners. His infinite merit was placed to their account. He suffered in the sinner's stead. Just as the Israelites had only to look upon the brazen serpent in the wilderness, so the sinner needs only to look upon Christ uplifted on the cross (Num. 21:4-9; John 12:32; I Cor. 5:21; I Pet. 2:24). Our salvation cost on the part of God the giving up of his only begotten Son, and on the part of Christ the suffering and shame of the cross.

4. For whom the new birth was provided (vv. 16, 17). "Whosoever believeth in him." These verses give in a condensed form the whole plan of salvation. Observe:

a. Its source—"God so loved."

b. Its ground—the death of Christ—"He gave."

c. Its recipients—"Whosoever."

d. Its condition—"Believe in him."

e. Its results—"Should not perish—have everlasting life."

III. Man's Attitude Toward Christ (vv. 18-21).

1. Some believe and are saved. Those who believe are now free from condemnation.

2. Some will not believe and are therefore resting under the condemnation of God. The awful sin which causes men to be eternally lost is unbelief in Christ. The cause of their unbelief in him is their love of sin.

It is not work that kills men; it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more upon a man than he can bear. Worry is rust upon the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, but the friction.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Denver Mother Tells Story

Nature controls all the functions of our digestive organs except one. We have control over that, and it's the function that causes the most trouble.

See that your children form regular bowel habits, and at the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness or constipation, give them a little California Fig Syrup. It regulates the bowels and stomach and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act as Nature intends them to. It helps build up and strengthen pale, listless, underweight children. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it's purely vegetable, so you can give it as often as your child's appetite lags or he seems feverish, cross or fretful.

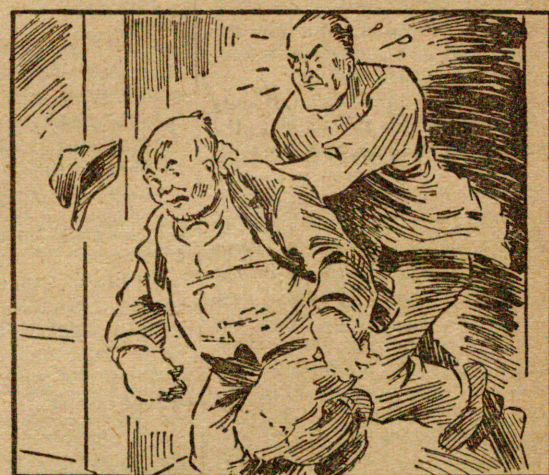

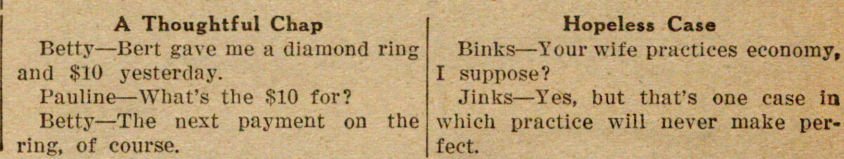

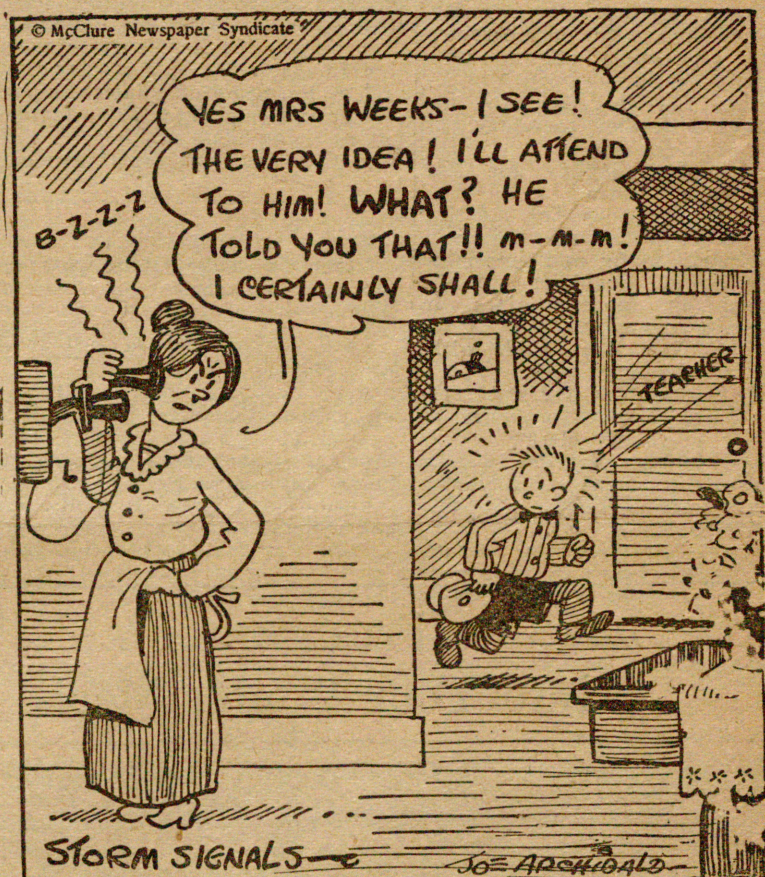

Leading physicians have endorsed it for 50 years, and its overwhelming sales record of over four million bottles a year shows how mothers depend on it. A Western mother, Mrs. R. W. Stewart, 4112 Raritan St., Denver, Colorado, says: "Raymond was terribly pulled down by constipation. He got weak, fretful and cross, had no appetite or energy and food seemed to sour in his stomach. California Fig Syrup had him romping and playing again in just a few days, and soon he was back to normal weight, looking better than he had looked in months."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. The mark of the genuine is the word "California" on the carton.

ORLAND PARK

ORLAND PARK SCHOOL NEWS

The grammar and high school teams played at Mokena last Friday evening, both being defeated decisively. However, inasmuch as it was their first appearance in any gym as a team and they have as yet been unable to practise, the boys promise rapid improvement in the future. Bill Newcomb, Eldon Nicolai and Frank Steinmetz were the Orland stars.

The mid-year examinations of the High School will take place next Monday and Tuesday.

The open winter which has prevailed so far has been gratefully received by the pupils as far as playground work is concerned. Even the indoor balls and bats have made their appearance in the last week.

Virginia and Geraldine Steffen have transferred to School District

121.

One of the busiest rooms of the school is the manual training room. During most of the day, various classes may be seen there under the direction of Mr. Bechtloff. The boys turn out such projects as wall-shelves, lamps, magazine racks, and a host of other useful and valuable articles. The work done here is of the highest quality and the boys like to do work there. The manual training curriculum is valuable not only for the pieces that are actually turned out or for the training given the boys in becoming handy with tools, but also because they are trained to work on their own responsibility which is one of the main goals of any school. In the manual training room, this is developed to the highest degree.

Mr. White has awarded literary letters of Orland High School to Marion Wheeler, Alfretha Young, Jim Pomeroy, Billie Helting, Irene Jacobson, Merrill Cooper, Ruth Kay, Ralph Kimmel, Gladys Townsend, Iona Enders and Elizabeth Steffen.

ORLAND LEGION NOTES

Tuesday evening, January 12th, the Legion held its regular meeting. Although it was a rainy night 35 Legionnaires were present.

Oysters were served, fried and stewed, and pork and beef sandwiches were served to those who didn't like oysters.

A good feed as well as a good time was enjoyed by all.

The following new members were taken in to the post: Comrads Albert Priebe, Albert Lipke, and M. Conrad from Worth, and Edward Smith, Peter Smith, Herman Egbrecht, and Elbert Womack of Orland.

We received our Silver and Bronze Plaque for being the only Post in the district to make it's full 1932 quota by January 1st.

We voted to have an old fashioned Hard Time dance at Hildebrand's Hall at Worth, Illinois, on Saturday evening, January 30th.

Our next regular meeting will be held Tuesday, January 26th.

Beautiful Highways

With Trees

Motorists are taking notice of the new planting of trees between St. Charles and Elmhurst. About a year ago the state, in co-operation with the Fox Valley Federation, planted small evergreens along the route. The trees were raised and in by the St. Charles School for Boys. The trees did not thrive and for the most part either died or were taken out by passing motorists.

The present planting will be more successful because it may not be noticed by the passing motorist. There is no monotonous regularity and no particular place which draws or distracts the driver's eyesight from the road to the roadside, or these special planting sites, and yet, unlike the little boy who missed seeing the woods because of the trees, they miss seeing the trees separately but do not fail to see the beauty which unconsciously impresses itself upon them. This model planting was expertly planned and every group, clump and cluster of trees, bushes and vines appears to be a natural roadside growth. Figure at the rate which private estates pay for such landscaping and planting and including the usual cost of such trees, vines, and shrubs this one improvement is worth over $8,000.

Commissioners Plan

Suggested for Will Co.

Since the Will County Tax payers Association investigating committee made its report about excessive cost of county government, the suggestion has been made by some of the taxpayers that it would be more economical to abolish the present system of a county board composed of a large number of supervisors and in place substitute the county commissioner form of county government with five commissioners who should be paid a salary for which they should devote their entire time to their county commissioner job. Let each commissioner have a certain department and be responsible for same. The contention is in some circles that this form of county government would be unfair to the country districts as the city would have the most votes and would have the majority of representation, but those in favor of the commissioner say this would not be the case and that the country districts would be just as much representation as they now have.

It is figured that by eliminating all per diem and mileage fees now paid the supervisors, a big saving would be effected.

Another plan advanced is to abolish the offices of highway commissioner and town clerk for each town and have the county commissioner of highways do all this work. The road and bridge tax should be decreased it is pointed out inasmuch as most of the main highways in every township are paved and are being maintained by the county or state and that less money is needed for each township for road and bridge purposes than formerly. The fact remains, however, that despite the paved roads the road and bridge tax remains just the same as when each town had to build its own gravel roads and bridges.

These ideas of various taxpayers pay looking into. If there is any merit in the ideas look into them, if not forget about them.

This Friday evening there will be three games at the Mokena gymnasium. The first game will be between the Cardinals and Bruins. The Cardinals are working hard for a victory in order to avenge the defeat of last week.

The two other games are with the Manhattan high school first and second teams. These players are tall and husky so the Mokena players will have a tough assignment this time. When Manhattan played here before, Mokena was successful in coming through with two close victories, the second team winning 14 to 9 and the first team winning 19 to 16, but the Manhattan teams have been playing many games so a great improvement in their playing can be expected.

A Few Reasons Why Will County Taxes Show Big Increase

Since the Will County Taxpayers League made a report on the increase of county government expenses since 1914, the editor has made a little investigation of his own of the county records and finds that the taxpayers of the county have in many instances helped to create the expenses by voting in favor of costly measures. Here are a few high lights:

In 1914 there were 44 supervisors on the county board and they were then paid $3 per day for their services. Since then the membership of the county board has increased to 55 supervisors who are now paid $5 per day for their services. In 1914 the supervisors received for fees, per diem and mileage $3,565.15 and in 1931 they received $6,395.50 and in 1914 they received $2,530.10 for committee work and in 1931 they were paid $19,494.55 for committee work.

In 1914 there was no county auditor, who now receives $1500 for salary and clerk hire. Now the county boards dependant children at a cost of $2,423.34 for 1931, an item unknown in 1914.

The greatest item of expense of all is the county road bond issue. The total for bonds taken up and the interest on the issue of $1,850,000 came to $136,063.75 in 1931, another item unknown in 1914. Of course the public wants improvements, but they must also expect to pay for them. Another matter on the road proposition should not be overlooked. In 1914 each township paid for the upkeep of its highways and now the county offers county aid. The County highway tax for right of way in 1931 was $34,959.27.

In 1914 there was no federal veterinarian who now draws a salary of $4800 per year and his expense account last year was $352.19.

Since 1914 Will County has established a tuberculosis sanitarium which in 1931 cost $93,801.73 to operate.

Since 1914 Will County has also created a forest preserve board. Of course these are all vital improvements, but Mr. Taxpayer must not forget that these items are reflected in his taxes and increase the cost of county government.

The sum paid out in 1914 for mothers pension was $5,000; in 1931 it was $20,367.63. Blind pension also shows a big increase. In 1914 it was $4,710.45; in 1931 $21,073.50 was paid out for blind pensions.

The population of Will County has increased right along and the taxpayers have voted in favor for almost every measure put up, regardless of the increased taxes or of county expenses. The more new jobs that are created by the introduction of new improvements and new departments, the more extra expenses are also created. Will County expenses show an increase of $307,705.50. It is not the salaries of officials and clerks along which cause the big increase in county government expense, but the many new bond issues and new department what is reflected back in the tax bill of the property owner.

This article is not a white wash for anyone, but merely show that the taxpayers of Will County should not be so quick to vote thru bond issue after bond issue if they don't want to pay tax bills that hurt.

Improvements must be made, but the old debts should first be wiped out before a lot of new ones are added. Every improvement, convenience or luxury made or enjoyed must be paid for.

MOKENA

The Iris Garden Club Unit met at the home of Adamarie Semmler on Monday afternoon after school, Jan. 4th. Their leader, Mrs. A. Braun was in charge. The club had a short hike before the meeting. The regular business was taken care of and a discussion about the Flower Show was held. Mrs. Braun gave a report of her visit to the Juvenile Home for children in Chicago where we have sent a box at Xmas time. The next meeting will be held in February in the home of Lois Homering.

Rev. Paul E. Schauers and family have vacated the Immanuel Lutheran parsonage and have moved into the former Chas. Moriarty residence. Attempts were made the past week to break into the Motor Sales Garage and Wolf Hollow stand on Wolf road. Both were unsuccessful.

Thursday midnight the fire siren woke up the citizens of Mokena, but there was no fire. It was discovered that a knight of the road staying at the village hall for the night mistook the siren button for an electric light switch and when he turned it on he set off the fire siren.

before. Women taking the Keeley Cure. Families being degraded, and the sanctity of the home destroyed. "We were told that Prohibition would empty the jails. Yet we find the jails overcrowded, and a new cry, 'Build larger and better jails.' Our insane asylums have more inmates, instead of fewer. Gangsters have increased and their power is unlimited. Mr. Charles Francis Coe, speaking to an audience at Detroit a short time ago, said, 'Prohibition did not make the gangster, it financed him and gave him power.' He made the statement that one gangster in Chicago alone, collected $130,000,000 annually, 90 millions of which goes for corruption. A gangster could not succeed without connivance of the politician.

"If the government is to receive money from the sale of liquor we want it done in an honorable way, and not by taking part of the illicit gains of the bootlegger, beer lord, and rum runner.

"Columbia the gem of the ocean we stand ready to fight for you with the courage of the man whose name you bear, with the patriotism of our forefathers, with the love of those young men who sleep in soldiers graves, martyrs to your cause of freedom, and we shall not cease until the fight is won and we can say to our children this is your land, this is America, this is a land whose government is not a government of the fanatics, for the gangsters and by the Anti-Saloon League, but a government of the people, for the people and by the people."

Col. Ira L. Reeves in his remarks said he had served at one time as a prohibition enforcer in New Jersey and declared that less than two per cent of the dry agents are honest and that more lives have been sacrificed in trying to enforce the 18th amendment than were lost in the American Revolution.

He pointed out 7 popular fallacies that the prohibition advocates are spreading. If the 18th amendment were repealed the old time saloon would not return, Col. Reeves stated.

Homer B. Grommon, chairman of the Will County Taxpayers League reviewed conditions in Will County regarding expense of county government and said there was not a scratch of the pen in the office of the county auditor to show what the county expenses are. He said some of the county employees draw higher wages than the union wage scale being paid in Chicago.

He hit at the sale of anticipation tax warrants in Joliet. Mr. Grommon said the politician will only go as far as the voter will let him go.

Radio Show Visitors To See Real Giant Television First Time

Television pictures ten feet square network and local station broadcasting, a Western television kit building contest, and the presence of "Miss Radio" and "Miss Television" are some of the high spots that will attract a quarter of a million visitors to the annual Chicago Radio-Electrical Show, at the Coliseum January 18 to 24.

The exhibits which fill the mammoth Coliseum will be the newest radio receivers, electrical refrigerators, and all kinds of electrical appliances. The merchants who handle such products, both dealers and jobbers will hold their annual conventions at the Congress Hotel, concurrently with the show. Though hundreds of members live in the Chicago metropolitan area, even larger representation will come from many distributing centers throughout the nation.

One of the most interesting features in connection with the exposition is the search for the Television Baby being conducted by the two Fair stores in Chicago and the store in Oak Park. Winners of the various classifications, to a total of one hundred one, will be presented to the show visitors via television, each afternoon.

Miss Radio and Miss Television, for whom exhaustive search was conducted during the past two months, will reign over the exposition.

Reapportionment Killing Means Lot of Political Activity

Illinois must retain its 25 congressional districts as they have stood since 1901.

Hope for reapportionment passed by the 1931 legislature was smothered under a Supreme Court ruling Wednesday, affirming the recent decision of Circuit Judge Edward Shurtleff holding the act invalid.

With this question settled much activity in politics is looked for in a very short time.

This Is One of the Jobs That Fame Brings

NOW wouldn't you like to be Bing Crosby or at least be in his shoes? He has just been selected to judge a beauty contest at Oglethorpe University in Georgia, so to be qualified for the job—and he admits it's going to be quite a job—he has been practicing up on some of Broadway and Fifth Avenue's most famous models. Perhaps you recognize some of them from advertisements you have seen in the newspapers and magazines. Bing, who sings on the Cremo program every week night over the Columbia Broadcasting System, was comparatively unknown a few months ago. Now, because of his original type of singing he is one of Broadway's reigning theatrical and radio stars. He is, as the New York Telegraph says, "the boy who went over with a bang with his peculiar style of singing songs by tumbling from bar to bar in a pleasing exhibition of vocal musical gymnastics." If such musical success is apt to give one so pleasant a job as judging beauty contests, we predict an unusual increase in the ranks of the musical gymnasts. Perhaps you might listen to Bing to find out how it's done.

UNITED STATES ARMY CALLED ON TO ANSWER MANY ODD QUESTIONS

Information Bureau Anxious to Be of Assistance.

New York.—Who? Where? When? What? How? Why?

This is the barrage of questions which is the daily lot of one regular army soldier holding a unique position in the military service. To his desk and over the telephone come all sorts of queries, this multitude of questions having to do with service matters for the most part.

The soldier who, to answer these divers and multitudinous questions, must have a wide range of data right at his finger tips, is the desk clerk of the United States army information service, 39 Whitehall street, New York city.

This man comes in contact with several hundred people every week, who are in quest of some form of information, and not always of a military nature. Still, the iron bound rule of that office is, "All queries must be answered." The greater part of the queries are made by phone, but many feel that they can obtain better service by calling personally.

In addition to the hundreds of different questions pertaining to the veterans bureau, the National Guard, the organized reserves, the citizens military training camps and West Point, the information clerk is called upon to settle many disputes between friends who disagree over some question regarding the military service.

The following are typical of the questions asked:

What is the weight of the army rifle and how many shots will it fire?
What regiment of engineers is surveying the proposed Nicaraguan canal?
Who is the assistant secretary of war?

What is General Ely's first name?
When does the next army transport sail and how many troops will she carry?

Here's a Puzzler.
How long will it take a transport sailing from New York to arrive at Manila and how many stops are there?

How many gold star mothers made the pilgrimage to Europe?

How many air ambulances are there in the army?

Can a soldier enter Mexico in uniform?

In order to answer these questions promptly the information clerk must know his army. The majority of the questions asked are answered immediately, without consulting sources, for it is the pride of the army information service that its personnel shall be well informed. Frequently, however, some seeker after knowledge of things military will present a poser.

Then the information clerk must consult files both current and ancient, or even, in rare instances, resort to calling upon some bureau of the War department in Washington for the information desired. Once a question is asked, however, the army information does not put it aside until it has been answered.

STORY OF FLOOD REWRITTEN BY EXPERTS' PICKS AND SHOVELS

Excavations Now Show It Was Local Affair.

Philadelphia.—Picks and shovels of modern archeological expeditions are rewriting the Biblical study of the flood on the banks of the ancient Euphrates, in Mesopotamia.

A series of moving pictures, taken by the University of Pennsylvania museum expedition, under the leadership of Dr. C. Leonard Woolsey, were brought to the museum by Doctor Woolsey and exhibited to the public.

These show that the Biblical recital of the risen waters, which eliminated the races of the Euphrates, is a legend recounted by succeeding generations of the Assyrians, long before the Jews incorporated it into their Old Testament, Doctor Woolsey said.

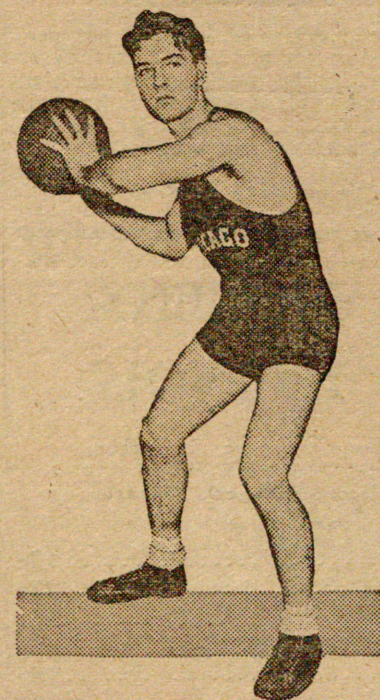

Excavations of the expedition also prove, he declared, that the flood occurred many years before the Hebrew tribes trod the soil of Mesopotamia.

Tunneling beneath the underpinnings of structures built by races who dwelt in the section after the waters of the Biblical flood had disappeared, the excavators found the silt left by the flood near Ur of the Chaldees, which must have occurred between 5000 and 4000 B. C., according to the calculations of the archeologists.

The Biblical flood, according to Doctor Woolsey, was a purely local phenomenon and consisted merely of the overflowing of the Euphrates. It was not a world-wide flood, as the Bible relates, and not all the peoples of the earth were drowned, he said.

According to the Biblical account, the only family to survive the rising waters of the river was that of Noah, but the archeologist said that there were no Jews thereabouts at that time.

Being Constantly Amused

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

We have never had moving picture or vaudeville houses open on Sunday in our town for more than a few days at least. Every few years the subject comes up for discussion and sometimes even a vote is taken, but so far the opposition has won out.

Those who favor the opening of the theaters on Sunday argue that there is nothing to do if they cannot see a vaudeville show or a moving picture. They are resourceless; they yawn or sleep through the day and are glad when Monday comes and they can take up their regular work again.

The thing that has interested me in observing the people who have made the loudest pleas for the Sunday theater is that they are the ones who have most opportunity if they choose to use it, for this sort of recreation during the week.

I was more than interested while reading excerpts from the autobiography of Mr. George Arliss to get a point of view very different from what one might expect from this great actor who has spent all his life on the stage and who must have a very favorable opinion of what the theater has to contribute toward the healthy amusement of the public.

"If I had my way," he says, "I would close all theaters and all movie houses on Sunday. I would make it a day apart. I would withhold all the ordinary amusements except outdoor sports. . . . There is no reason why the day should be dull for anyone. There are always good books. There are hobbies to be pursued. I would have all the art galleries and museums wide open. I would have classical music and high-class concerts. . . . I do not suggest that this class of entertainment is necessarily better, but it is different, and it is likely to open up in one's mind fresh ideas. . . . An unbroken routine in our amusements may be as bad as a steady grind in our labors."

It is his last sentence which appeals to me.

"An unbroken routine in our amusements may be as bad as a steady grind in our labors."

Early Paper Money

In Europe paper to represent money first came into use, apparently, during the Middle Ages when the Jewish financiers of those days reinvented the bills of exchange of Babylonians and recorded them in ink on parchment and paper.

The Bank of St. George at Genoa and the Bank of Venice were the first corporations to use paper money. Their bills were bullion certificates. Because the use of these receipts were so much more convenient than carrying about heavy bags of gold and silver, they became popular with merchants and even circulated at a premium over coin.—Detroit News.

Crop Reporting Board Will Take Listeners Behind the Scenes.

Listeners will be taken behind the scenes to hear an explanation of how the government Crop Reporting Board prepares the estimates of crop and live stock production which its members announce regularly in the National Farm and Home Hour when W. F. Callender, chairman of the board, speaks in the Department period of the National Farm and Home Hour on Tuesday, January 12.

Callender will describe graphically how the Board analyzes statistics collected from 300,000 farmers, and from this mass of data makes the monthly estimates which are considered the most authoritative in the world.

For stockmen, a group of three economists will explain the recent course of prices for beef cattle, hogs, and sheep, in the program of Wednesday, January 13.

The Federal Farm Board will continue its series of talks during 1932 setting forth the progress made in various lines of co-operative organization.

Future Farmers will hear their special monthly program on Monday, January 11, and on Saturday, January 16, there will be a broadcast of the monthly program by the National Grange.

Thirty-two measures of music written during the closing announcement of the National Farm and Home Hour, is the speed record of Harry Kogen, director of the Home-headers orchestra. As the announcer began, Kogen became aware of the fact that two of his violinists did not have the music for the "Homesteaders' Waltz," the closing theme number. Kogen wrote and finished it in the nick of time.

Aiming to stress the importance of forest fire prevention, the United States Forest service will broadcast the second in a series of dramatic skits on Thursday, January 14, "With Uncle Sam's Forest Rangers" features episodes in the life of an "old ranger" and its youthful cub assistant.

The Future Farmers of America will present their regular monthly broadcast in the National Farm and Home Hour on Monday, January 11, featuring news of Future Farmers activities and talks by their leaders.

THE STORY

Six bandits held up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the Mackenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sergt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father. Alan leads his expedition up the big Alooska. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits and returns to Port Endurance. Haskell blames him for the failure and Alan is allowed to buy out of the Mounted on condition that he absolve Haskell from blame.

CHAPTER VI

The Dark Hour

In his cabin Alan took off his uniform and changed to civilian clothes. It seemed to him he was stripping off his foot-free adventuresome life with that uniform.

What money he had on hand, several hundred dollars, he buttoned carefully in his shirt pocket. His expenses on this trip ahead would be heavy; he would have to borrow. But he was going to take that Victoria job, and he knew Colonel Steele would gladly give him a salary advance.

Then he made up a slender pack—a single blanket, a change of clothes, food for a week or ten days. That was all. No camping outfit, no weapons, no equipment for wilderness travel.

As he was buckling his pack together, Elizabeth unexpectedly came into the cabin. As she stepped into the light, she exclaimed: "Alan! That MacMillan girl told Mrs. Drummond that Haskell demoted you! That you're a constable! That he put all the blame of this patrol on you!"

"That's what he did," Alan answered, straightening up, facing her. "I didn't believe he was capable of it. But I shouldn't have been surprised; he's given me cues enough to his nature."

"And you're going to stand for that?" Her voice rose, sharp, nagging. "You're going to be his orderly, a constable, disgraced, bossed around? I'd think that any man would—would—"

She checked herself as she saw the government property laid out on the bed and noticed that Alan was in civilian clothes.

He said quietly: "You were a bit hasty. I didn't stand for it. I bought out. I'm out of the Mounted. Out for good!"

Elizabeth gasped. For moments she stared at him, incredulous.

She did not know just why he had taken this drastic step, but vaguely she guessed he had had some fierce clash with Haskell. It did not matter, the circumstances. He was free of this ninety-a-month rut, this backwoods calling. There had always been a doubt in her mind whether Alan, when the great test came would actually tear himself away from the Mounted. She had expected a fight that would embitter him against her. But now he was out; he would surely take that Victoria offer; next winter she would be living in Victoria!

Her heart leaped at the thought, and her whole manner toward Alan changed. She drew near him, slipped an arm about him; and a softness came into her voice.

"Dear, you're sorry to be out. I'm sorry to see you so hurt. You didn't want to leave here, Alan. I—I did want you to; but I wouldn't have insisted. I'd have given in to you, dear, before I'd seen you unhappy. In the long run, we'll not regret; it'll be the best for us."

Alan watched the candle sheen in her hair, the auburn hair that always brought him poignant memories of her brother Curt. His thoughts, leaping ahead to his lone-handed venture, were scarcely with her at all, yet he was bewildered by her sudden change, her ardent affection. There had been times when affection from her would have cheered and heartened him; but now her lips, inviting him, asking for his own, meant less than the pack lying at his feet.

She asked him: "And now—you're going to take—we'll be down in Victoria, now? Won't Colonel Steele be glad when he hears! You'll write to him right away?"

"I suppose so. Yes, I'm going to take that job. Not much else to turn to."

She noticed how cold, how unmoved he was; and she went on, half-whispering:

"On our way outside, we can be married at Edmonton, and have that trip we planned to the Blackfoot Selkirk. And we'll have—we can afford to have now!—a cabin back in Vancouver island; back in the mountains by ourselves, Alan."

He merely said, gesturing at the alcove: "I'm leaving Curt's keepsakes here. You'll watch after them, won't you?" And he added, "I'm leaving here tonight, Elizabeth."

"Leaving here? Tonight?" Her eyes went to the pack on the floor. Suddenly startled, she looked up at him again.

Feeling that he owed some explanation to the girl he was engaged to, he partly explained: "I'm pitching off on a trip, Elizabeth. By myself. I'm going after those men that shot up two of my friends. Haskell blocked a patrol I wanted to make. To go after them I had to be free. I don't know how long it'll take me. Maybe three weeks, maybe six. I'd like for you to wait here."

Something in his manner stopped Elizabeth from questioning him. She knew he intended to marry her and take her to Victoria; but something told her that in this present hour it was not well to question or oppose Alan Baker.

She acquiesced: "I'll wait, dear. I'll wait here for you. But, Alan, before you go . . ." She stood on tiptoe, reproaching him, begging, "Aren't you going to tell me good-by?"

Alan bent and kissed her, as she invited. But he did it dispassionately, as a thing expected of him. He felt her breath on his cheek, her arm tightening around him, her body pressed against his. He was subtly but unmistakably aware of a certain willingness about her; she wanted him to linger; she would have stayed with him there in the cabin. . . . It surprised, it shocked him, after all these months when she had been so cold and passionless.

When she had gone, he buckled his pack and caught up his hat. As he started to snuff the two candles in the alcove, he heard a thumping footstep on the threshold and turned to see Bill Hardsock. In a flash he guessed that Bill had been waiting outside, not wanting to come in while Elizabeth was there.

"Alan! H—!s blue blazes!" Bill was all but incoherent as he advanced across the cabin. "Say it isn't so! I heard . . . wasn't meaning to listen . . . Joyce told me part of it, and I just heard you tell Elizabeth. . . . He didn't bust you? He didn't dare! And blame you for splitting our patrol? You didn't buy out—"

"I'm Out of the Mounted—Out for Good!"

"That's what I did, Bill. He busted me, blamed me. What's worse, he wouldn't let us make the Inconnu trip. I couldn't stand that. I'm out. Leaving Endurance. Right now."

Bill's face turned gray. His jaw dropped, he stood in stupefied shock, with a look of misery on his blunt, bulldog features.

"You're—leaving—us," he gulped. "You're—pitching away—for good. You always stood up for us men, against Haskell. You and me . . . pretty good partners. . . . Now you won't be here any more, Alan. . . ."

"Bill, shake yourself together and listen. I'm going after those bandits. There's several things you've got to do for me. One is, I want you to cut aside from patrols whenever you can and visit Joyce and see she's safe. Another thing. I'm giving you this cabin and what's in it, except for a little personal stuff that I'll get some time or else send for. Then, there's one last thing. Got any free time coming in the next couple weeks?"

"I don't know. Yes, must have three or four days—way we've been hitting the ball all winter."

"Two days will be enough. I need a little help on my plan; and you, here at Endurance, you can give me a hand. It's not much, but it'll mean a lot to me. I'll tell you what I've got in mind, so you'll understand."

Old English "Sport" of Fox Hunting Endangered

Would England still be England, without its hunting rallies? Is this sport of centuries, the merry chase of elusive foxes, fated to die out?

It is unlikely that there is any feature of English country life so typical of the customs and traditions of the nation, as fox hunting. This being so, a recent statement of the earl of Rosebery, on accepting the mastership of the Whadden chase, that this sport is in a very critical condition, came rather as a surprise. He declared that five neighboring packs are having difficulty in finding masters, and that sportsmen must rally around now, or see fox hunting go the way of hawking. His lordship ascribed the decline to hard times and high taxation.

This might be considered bad news, even for the foxes, for from accounts of this sport that I have read, it would seem that the prey gets as much fun out of eluding the huntsmen, as the latter do in the galloping pursuit.

After some of these old wily masters of the craft have learned the business, their chances of becoming a mere brush are comfortably few. Why, there are even some of these old fellows who pay visits to the kennels, if the hunt is not up regularly, to see what is keeping their little playmates! At least that's the story told.—Border Cities Star.

Constitution First

The Constitution was written before the preamble, and voted upon, section by section. It was then submitted to the committee on style, which made the final draft, placing the preamble in its proper place. It was then voted upon in its entirety.

Fight COLDS

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil contains a wealth of Vitamin A. This increases resistance to those winter colds that are apt to spread through the family. So smooth is this emulsion, so pleasantly flavored, that it lacks the fishy taste usually associated with cod liver oil. Doctors recommend it for men and women. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. After the most of his flock had deserted his church and gone to Pompano, Fla., to harvest the winter bean crop, Lewis Clark, negro Baptist minister at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., removed his church building, bell, pews, pulpit, collection plates and all, to Pompano so that the congregation might again be assembled for religious services.

A Few Reasons Why Will County Taxes Show Big Increase

Since the Will County Taxpayers League made a report on the increase of county government expenses since 1914, the editor has made a little investigation of his own of the county records and finds that the taxpayers of the county have in many instances helped to create the expenses by voting in favor of costly measures. Here are a few high lights:

In 1914 there were 44 supervisors on the county board and they were then paid $3 per day for their services. Since then the membership of the county board has increased to 55 supervisors who are now paid $5 per day for their services. In 1914
the supervisors received for fees, per diem and mileage $3,565.15 and in 1931 they received $6,395.50 and in 1914 they received $2,530.10 for committee work and in 1931 they were paid $19,494.55 for committee work.

In 1914 there was no county auditor, who now receives $1500 for salary and clerk hire. Now the county boards dependant children at a cost of $2,423.34 for 1931, an item unknown in 1914.

The greatest item of expense of all is the county road bond issue.
The total for bonds taken up and the interest on the issue of $1,850, 000 came to $136,063.75 in 1931.
Another item unknown in 1914. Of course the public wants improvements, but they must also expect to pay for them. Another matter on the road proposition should not be overlooked. In 1914 each township paid for the upkeep of its highways and now the county offers county aid.
The County highway tax for right of way in 1931 was $34,959.27.

In 1914 there was no federal vet-erinarman who now draws a salary of $4800 per year and his expense account last year was $352.19.

Since 1914 Will County has established a tuberculosis sanitarium which in 1931 cost $93,801.73 to operate.

Since 1914 Will County has also created a forest preserve board. Of course these are all vital improvements, but Mr. Taxpayer must not forget that these items are reflected in his taxes and increase the cost of county government.

The sum paid out in 1914 for mothers pension was $5,000; in 1931 it was $20,367.63. Blind pension also shows a big increase. In 1914 it was $4,710.45; in 1931 $21,073.50
was paid out for blind pensions.

The population of Will County has increased right along and the taxpayers have voted in favor for almost every measure put up, regardless of the increased taxes or of county expenses. The more new jobs that are created by the introduction of new improvements and new departments, the more extra expenses are also created. Will County expenses show an increase of $307, 705.50. It is not the salaries of officials and clerks along which cause the big increase in county government expense, but the many new bond issues and new departments which is reflected back in the tax bill of the property owner.

This article is not a white wash for anyone, but merely show that the taxpayers of Will County should not be so quick to vote thru bond issue after bond issue if they don't want to pay tax bills that hurt.

Improvements must be made, but the old debts should first be wiped out before a lot of new ones are added. Every improvement, convenience or luxury made or enjoyed must be paid for.

MOKENA

The Iris Garden Club Unit met at the home of Adamarie Semmler on Monday afternoon after school, Jan.
4th. Their leader, Mrs. A. Braun was in charge. The club had a short hike before the meeting. The regular business was taken care of and a discussion about the Flower Show was held. Mrs. Braun gave a report of her visit to the Juvenile Home for children in Chicago where we have sent a box at Xmas time. The next meeting will be held in February in the home of Lois Homering.

Rev. Paul E. Schauers and family have vacated the Immanuel Lutheran parsonage and have moved into the former Chas. Moriarty residence.

Attempts were made the past week to break into the Motor Sales Garage and Wolf Hollow stand on Wolf road. Both were unsuccessful.

Thursday midnight the fire siren woke up the citizens of Mokena, but there was no fire. It was discovered that a knight of the road staying at the village hall for the night mistook
the siren button for an electric light switch and when he turned it on he set off the fire siren.

Prohibition Scored in Wet Political Rally Held in Mokena

"We were told that Prohibition would empty the jails. Yet we find the jails overcrowded, and a new cry, 'Build larger and better jails.'
Our insane asylums have more inmates, instead of fewer. Gangsters have increased and their power is unlimited. Mr. Charles Francis Coe, speaking to an audience at Detroit a short time ago, said, 'Prohibition did not make the gangster, it financed him and gave him power.'
He made the statement that one gangster in Chicago alone, collected $130,000,000 annually, 90 millions of which goes for corruption. A gangster could not succeed without connivance of the politician.

"If the government is to receive money from the sale of liquor we want it done in an honorable way, and not by taking part of the illicit gains of the bootlegger, beer lord, and rum runner.

"Columbia the gem of the ocean
we stand ready to fight for you with the courage of the man whose name you bear, with the patriotism of our forefathers, with the love of those young men who sleep in soldiers graves, martyrs to your cause of freedom, and we shall not cease until the fight is won and we can say to our children this is your land, this is America, this is a land whose government is not a government of the fanatics, for the gangsters and by the Anti-Saloon League, but a government of the people, for the people and by the people."

Col. Ira L. Reeves in his remarks said he had served at one time as a prohibition enforcer in New Jersey and declared that less than two per cent of the dry agents are honest and that more lives have been sacrificed in trying to enforce the 18th amendment than were lost in the American Revolution.

He pointed out 7 popular fallacies that the prohibition advocates are spreading. If the 18th amendment were repealed the old time saloon would not return, Col. Reeves stated.

Homer B. Grommon, chairman of the Will County Taxpayers League reviewed conditions in Will County regarding expense of county government and said there was not a scratch of the pen in the office of the county auditor to show what the county expenses are. He said some of the county employees draw higher wages than the union wage scale being paid in Chicago.

He hit at the sale of anticipation tax warrants in Joliet. Mr. Grommon said the politician will only go as far as the voter will let him go.

Radio Show Visitors To See Real Giant Television First Time

Television pictures ten feet square network and local station broadcasting, a Western television kit building contest, and the presence of "Miss Radio" and "Miss Television" are some of the high spots that will attract a quarter of a million visitors to the annual Chicago Radio-Electrical Show, at the Coliseum
January 18 to 24.

The exhibits which fill the mammoth Coliseum will be the newest radio receivers, electrical refrigerators, and all kinds of electrical appliances. The merchants who handle such products, both dealers and jobbers will hold their annual conventions at the Congress Hotel, concurrently with the show. Though hundreds of members live in the Chicago metropolitan area, even larger representation will come from many distributing centers throughout the nation.

One of the most interesting features in connection with the exposition is the search for the Television Baby being conducted by the two Fair stores in Chicago and the store in Oak Park. Winners of the various classifications, to a total of one hundred one, will be presented to the show visitors via television, each afternoon.

Miss Radio and Miss Television, for whom exhaustive search was conducted during the past two months, will reign over the exposition.

Reapportionment Killing Means Lot of Political Activity

Illinois must retain its 25 congressional districts as they have stood since 1901.

Hope for reapportionment passed by the 1931 legislature was smothered
under a Supreme Court ruling Wednesday, affirming the recent decision of Circuit Judge Edward Shurtleff holding the act invalid.

With this question settled much activity in politics is looked for in a very short time.

This Is One of the Jobs That Fame Brings

NOW wouldn't you like to be Bing Crosby or at least be in his shoes? He has just been selected to judge a beauty contest at Oglethorpe University in Georgia, so to be qualified for the job—and he admits it's going to be quite a job—he has been practicing up on some of Broadway and Fifth Avenue's most famous models. Perhaps you recognize some of them from advertisements you have seen in the newspapers and magazines. Bing, who sings on the Crema program every week night over the Columbia Broadcasting System, was comparatively unknown a few months ago. Now, because of his original type of singing he is one of Broadway's reigning theatrical and radio stars. He is, as the New York Telegraph says, "the boy who went over with a bang with his peculiar style of singing songs by tumbling from bar to bar in a pleasing exhibition of vocal musical gymnastics." If such musical success is apt to give one so pleasant a job as judging beauty contests, we predict an unusual increase in the ranks of the musical gymnasts. Perhaps you might listen to Bing to find out how it's done.

In the article in last week's issue
